RUSSIAN PATRIOTS TO GATHER HERE

Miss Bensly to Have a Real Salon in Her Fifth Avenue Mansion.

LEADERS HERE.

Authoress Says One Who Will Be Heard Soon Will Startle America by His Utterances.

New York is to have a real Salon. Miss Martha S. Bensly, authoress and writer on sociological subjects, is at its head, and around her will gravitate numerous greater and lesser leaders of the Russian revolution. Miss Bensly is now having her mansion at No. 3 Fifth avenue refitted, and there she will entertain the revolutionary leaders, who come to this country to work for the interests of liberty in Russia.

Forty mobles and army officers of the liberal party, who have found it impossible to live in Russia under present conditions, are now at Stockholm. Sweden, preparing to come to this country to work for the Russian revolution. Two have already come. One of these is now living at the mansion in Fifth avenue, and no persuasion will induce Miss Bensly to disclose his iden-

Wants No Organization.

Mr. Tchaykovsky talked about his miscount of his connection with movements sion to-day to a reporter. "I am not for freedom. Thousands of stands of here to organize anything." said he. "We arms have been sent through his hands cannot have an organization here but as to the Russia revolutionists, and he exindividuals we can communicate with Property Qualification.

"The body will not be representative. A very high property qualification has been blaced upon the voters, so that the vast majority cannot vote at all. The rest are warned at the polls that they cannot vote for their own leaders, whose names are posted on the doors of the polling places, with the notice that they will not be seated if elected. "In Siberia gangs of criminals have been liberated and organized by the Government to prey upon the local governments, which are in sympathy with the people, and then after they have done their work, soldiers are sent against them and they are exterminated. This is not fancy, but cold fact. "With such conditions we cannot accept the offer off the Czar. To do so would be disgraceful. Suppose the Douma is elected. It cannot bass a law. Any act of the Douma will have to receive the approval of the State Council, which is appointed, and has a majority of nobles. "The body will not be representative.

Not Ready for Revolt.

"I went back to Russia last January ifter a long absence and saw conditions for myself. They are terrible. The Czar s forcing the people to revolt before we are ready for it. We are anxious to hold back the revolutionary movement, but it cannot be done, and this spring will undoubtedly see it in full blast."

This was corroborated by Miss Bensly.

"We are keeping back the news as

This was corroborated by Miss Bensly. "We are keeping back the news as far as we can now," said she. "I have information to-day of a brand-new uprising in Russia of which not a word has got into the papers of the United States. We think it is premature, and we are suppressing the news of it." Armory at Tompkins Market, most of the details of which have been told in The Evening World. He has gone a step further, however, than the original proposition. That was to maintain the present building, which experts tell him is one of the strongest in the city, and fix it up properly. In the basement he suggested a swimming pool and shower baths, the other floors to be used as domitories.

He has now ascertained that the structure will stand one or two more additional stories. He wants at least one more built and fitted as a symmaslum.

Recorder Recognizes the Symptoms and Lets Prisoner Go.

A "collar-button jag" was brought t light yesterday in the Bayonne, N. J. Police Court when John Reynolds, of Avenue C, was charged by his wife Jennie, with being drunk and raising ructions at home. "I was not drunk," Reynolds said to Recorder Lazarus. "I had tasted nothing stronger than coffee. I dropped my collar-button and it rolled under the dresser. I searched for it so long that I became diray and may have acted etrangely. That was all."

"Rewnolfs, you are discharged. I have been through to make any man act, and it's enough to make any man act uncerte." the Court said.
